FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Meehan Green Rebrands as KEO in Ireland

Irish sustainability consultancy will operate under the KEO name following its acquisition in 2025.

Dublin, Ireland – October 08, 2026. Irish sustainability consultancy, Meehan Green, will operate under the KEO Group name from October, completing its integration into KEO Group.

Meehan Green joined KEO Group in 2025 and has continued to trade under its own name since then. During that time, the team has paired its regional expertise and reputation in sustainable building practices with KEO's global scale, innovation and technical capabilities. Adopting the KEO identity reflects how closely the teams already work together and brings the Irish business fully in line with the wider Group.

The change is in name only. Ownership and structure are unaffected, the local team remains in place, and all services, client relationships, projects and commitments will continue as before.

Operating under the KEO name will strengthen KEO's presence in Ireland and support its continued growth across Europe.

Dorothy Maguire, Director of Sustainability at KEO, said:

"Joining KEO has given our clients access to a much broader range of expertise, and taking on the KEO name is a natural next step. Our team, our commitment to sustainable building and the way we work with clients all stay the same. What changes is that we can now bring the full strength of an international group to every project in Ireland."

Christian Millar, Managing Director, Sustainability + Environment at KEO, said:

"Ireland is an important market for KEO, and the Meehan Green team has built an outstanding reputation for sustainability expertise. Bringing the business under the KEO name reflects how closely we already work together and positions us to grow our presence in Ireland and across Europe, while keeping the local knowledge and relationships that clients value."
